

Babies!

Babies are immature, miniature humans. They have a tendency to be cute and adorable; unfortunately, they also tend to be noisy and have unpredictable and irregular sleeping patterns. Babies can thus cause both happiness and exhaustion – spreading joy even while demanding excessive cuddling at 2am. They can also be expensive. Babies require an extraordinary array of accessories, tools, and supplies – innumerable diapers, vast quantities of baby formula, car seats, sparkly toys, and clothing that is worn for only a few months before it becomes too small.

Nevertheless, many people still insist on having babies. This may be because they are a constant source of fascination and surprise. Even as they age, one can never be certain what they are going to do next. They will giggle and laugh at the strangest times, and, when they start to talk, say the most charming things. Even for the most sullen adult, a pair of tiny arms clasped around the neck, a soft kiss on the cheek, and the words “I love you” are guaranteed to bring a smile.
