

Hoi An Banh Mi

Hoi An banh mi is known and praised by many food aficionados, but both locals and visitors must wait in line to enjoy the unique flavours of this 'Vietnamese-style sandwich'.

www.englishtreasure.asia

Hoi An banh mi has a crunchy golden-brown crust, with pâté, butter, and meat, made distinct with the sweet and sour taste of pickles, the aroma of coriander, and the spice of chili peppers. A small banh mi is enough for a breakfast that is fast, nutritious, and – importantly – affordable for both Hoi An residents and visitors.

youtube.com/EnglishTreasure

Just like in Hanoi, many banh mi shops in Hoi An have made a name for themselves with distinct flavours and specialties. The unique taste of each brand has brought fame to Hoi An banh mi, not only nationally, but also worldwide, such that they do not call the dish simply 'bread', but call it by its Vietnamese name: Banh Mi.

www.englishtreasure.asia

What is an aficionado?

youtube.com/EnglishTreasure

What tastes make Hoi An banh mi distinctive?

How would you describe the taste of pickles?